“British independent schools have a global reputation for the quality of the education they provide. Whilst their academic education is wonderful, it is also about educating the whole person. These are schools that turn out fine minds as well as fine friends, schools that shape fine learners and grow great leaders. In sum, schools that create well balanced people, who can flourish in the challenging times of today and tomorrow.

Haileybury has been successful in transplanting that ethos to other parts of the world. And I am delighted that Haileybury Bhaluka is now bringing it to Bangladesh. I have to say, I think it is an extraordinarily assured move by both parties as there is an extraordinary opportunity in education in Bangladesh.

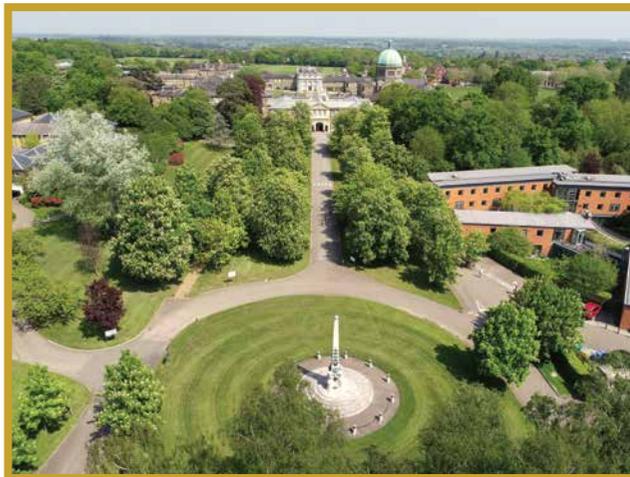

This is a country that is on the move, one that is highly ambitious and one that takes education incredibly seriously. I am surprised, to be honest, that no British independent school has yet spotted it here in Bangladesh, particularly given the strong historic, linguistic, cultural links that exist between our two countries.

It is particularly pleasing personally, because one of the most influential figures for me in my life was my great uncle, who was a proud Haileyburian and always stressed the part that had played in preparing him for life.

I think it's fantastic that this school, this partnership, will now be offering all the best virtues the British Independent education can offer, right here in Bangladesh.”

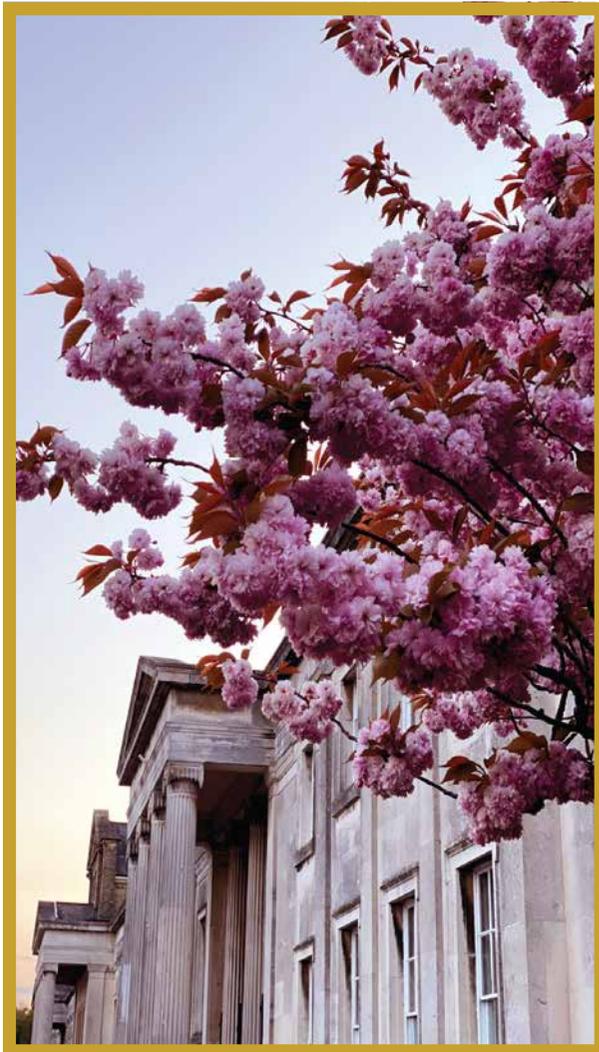

H.E. Robert Dickson

Bangladesh

“I have to say, I think it is an extraordinary assured move by both parties, because in Bangladesh, there is an extraordinary opportunity in education.”

“Haileybury Bhaluka is our first school in Southern Asia, and the Haileybury team are really excited to be part of this school partnership. Haileybury has a worldwide reputation for educational excellence, but is equally proud of its holistic education and its focus on the importance of manners.

Our hope is for Haileybury Bhaluka that it will be the school which shares those objectives of Haileybury Bhaluka whilst embracing Bangladesh’s rich cultural heritage with a strong focus on the importance of manners. And I’d like to recite a quote from Islamic scholar Ibn Raja -

The reality of manners, is that it results from beautiful character. Thus, manners is the manifestation of the integrity and the strength in one’s inward personality into action.”
